

The Opportunity

We are seeking driven individuals who have high ambitions and possess the dedication to achieve them. This is a telephone-based, cold calling role where you will engage C-level executives and deal with multi-million-pound transactions.

For the right individual, this is an opportunity to change your life by working in a challenging and highly rewarding organisation. You will be in control of building and growing your own client portfolio and in determining your financial success.

The Role

Operating from our head office in Canary Wharf, London you will research and qualify prospective opportunities to build a qualified database. Using the telephone to engage with C-level executives, you will understand your clients' businesses and highlight areas where Millbank's solutions can help them.

Throughout your training and development, you will learn from our management team whom each has over 10 years of experience in foreign exchange markets. Working alongside them you will develop and implement effective strategists enabling clients to better manage their currency risk and capitalise on market opportunities.

Once you have attained the required knowledge to advise on a professional risk management strategy, you will progress to developing these strategies and managing your own portfolio.

About You

- *Have the drive to succeed and thrive in a competitive environment.
- *Possess excellent communication skills and be comfortable dealing with C-level executives.
- *Take accountability for your actions and realise you are in control of your financial success.
- *Have an intense thirst for knowledge and always curious to learn more.
- *Be focused and unwavering in your goals. You see what you want and go after it with total commitment.
